ENGLISH AND CHINESE WITH THE PUNY AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For complete and most practical service this work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, and the rapid extension of foreign relations imposed upon them, are here given in entire. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both in Chinese and English the rapid extension of the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of the arrangement in the size of body, thereby affecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have hitherto characterized Chinese publications.

To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration:—

Chinese Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Moller's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 60,000 Chinese characters, and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words, which have one common meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto published.

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which they are perfectly acquainted.

To parties residing in England and interested in China it cannot but be a valuable acquisition.

It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages.

A LARGE REDUCTION IN PRICE is made to Purchasers of SIX or more Copies.
